Glatfelter Launches First Interactive Mill Tour on Web Site

Global Supplier of Specialty Papers and Engineered Products Offers Comprehensive Multi-Media Presentation, Giving Viewers Front-Row Seats to How Paper Is Made

YORK, PA--(Marketwire - September 29, 2008) - (www.glatfelter.com) -- Glatfelter (NYSE: GLT), a leading global supplier of specialty papers and engineered products, launches its first ever Interactive Mill Tour; now available for viewing on the company's website. It's not often that one has a chance to take a personally guided "behind the scenes" tour to see how renewable wood resources are used to make paper for books, stamps, envelopes, greeting cards, carbonless forms, and a wide range of other specialty products that people rely on every day.

This exciting tour brings Glatfelter's Spring Grove, PA and Chillicothe, OH paper mills to life through rich illustrations and photography, informative video, and detailed animation. Viewers are led through these two fully integrated Kraft pulp and paper mills on a 20-minute journey that begins with a tree and ends with the finished paper product.

Viewers also learn how Glatfelter manages its environmental footprint by practicing sustainable forestry, making efficient use of biomass for fuels, utilizing green chemistry to help improve the efficiency of its pulp-bleaching process, and achieving chain-of-custody triple forestry certifications (FSC, SFI, PEFC) at both its North American facilities.

The video tour, also available on CD, can be viewed in its entirety or in shorter segments; ideal for training and educational seminars.
